ORGAN OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

The News Building, No. 6, Martin Street.

Congressional Convention.

A Convention of the Democrats and Conservatives of the Fourth District will be held in the city of Raleigh, on Thursday, the 22nd day of August next, for the purpose of electing a candidate for Congress. Each county will be entitled to one vote for every one hundred votes and fractional part over fifty, given for Gov. Vance in 1876.

By order of District Ex. Committee.

H. A. LONDON, Jr., Chairman.

July 2, 1878.

The Democratic papers in the District will please copy.

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Congressional Nominations.

FOR CONGRESS, FIRST DISTRICT:

JESSE J. YEATES, of Hertford.

FOR CONGRESS, THIRD DISTRICT:

ALFRED M. WADDELL, of New Hanover.

FOR CONGRESS, SIXTH DISTRICT:

WALTER L. STEELE, of Rockingham.

FOR CONGRESS, SEVENTH DISTRICT:

ROBERT F. ARMFIELD, of Iredell.

FOR CONGRESS, EIGHTH DISTRICT:

ROBERT B. VANCE, of Buncombe.

ELECTION—TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5TH.

"To Dumb Forgetfulness a Prey."

Mr. Josiah Turner has either "pented himself" (to use one of his own classic and favorite expressions) of his olden denunciation and ridicule of certain Radical leaders, white and black, in this Congressional District, or else he flatters himself that they are wrapped in that oblivion thereof, of which the poet speaks in the line which heads this paragraph. We are at a loss, on any other hypothesis, to account for his present coquetry with the individuals in question. If it is contrition that moves him, perhaps they will not be hard-hearted or unforgiving, for they have ever been a placable folk, ready to welcome new converts with open arms. Mayhap they may come to realize that:

"He doth such fair confession make.

As turns e'en the offence into a favour."

If, however, it be that he only presumes upon the effacing power of time as having blunted their memory of former taunts and objections, it is possible that he may be mistaken.

However it may be with others, we fancy, at least, that William A. Smith, of Johnston, though of a genial temperament, will hardly forget Mr. Turner's many intercalated thrusts, stirred to remembrance, as he must be, by that gentleman's recent accusations of bribery, about which we know nothing. Non nostrum tantis componere litis; which, translated freely, means, it is none of our fight.

What a sublime exhibition of that oratory which, as Sane's Parzifal said of sleep, covereth "as if with a mantle," it would be for Lassiter, of Granville, to take to his embraces the man who addressed him those famous "kilder" epistles in 1876; or for Judge Watts to doff the beaver of friendly recognition to the man who accused him of having been bought with $5000 in worthless bonds, while on the bench, and who clamored for his impeachment; or for Cebe Harris to applaud the man who charged him with corruption in connection with the Deep River location of the Penitentiary; or for Cuffee Mayo to hurrah for the man who said he stole a pistol, by way of diversifying his legislative duties; or for Judge Tourgee (if he be a denizen of the District) to make speeches in favor of the man who drew up that famous presentment of the Orange county Grand Jury; or for—but our pen can not do justice to these and the other possible effusions of Christian forgiveness which may await us! But greater far:

"Than this—than these—than all,"

would be the acclamatory rush of the negroes to the support of a man, whose recognition of their capacity to govern themselves or choose their own governors has been so tardy—yet, it must be confessed, so gushing and complete.

We have written upon the presumption that the persons to whom we have referred, and many others in like case to whom we might allude, have not forgotten Mr. Turner's "little attentions" in the past, but may be induced to meet his effusive advances "a long way off," "kill the fatted calf," and even, "put a ring upon his finger," but that it might be suggestive of certain complications in which he was wont to aver that they played a not reputable part. If, however, the presumption is at fault,—if they have really forgotten,—we crave pardon for having revived such ugly recollections.

What We May Expect.

The New York Tribune has a North Carolina correspondent, of whom it says that "he has a special familiarity with the politics of the State." We make the subjoined extract from the last letter of the said correspondent:

"The election in North Carolina, a week ago last Thursday, proves that the Republican party in that State is not dead, but that, with a little effort, it can, in November, elect to Congress at least one, and possibly three, Republicans from districts now represented by Democrats. Four Republican members of the House of Representatives from that State might not only change the political complexion of the popular branch of Congress, but it might even prevent the choice of a Democratic President in 1880, if the election should be thrown into the House."

All of which is literally true, with the one exception that it is not in the power of the Republican party to gain a single member of Congress in this State, if the Democrats are true to themselves and their organization. That they will make a desperate effort to do so,—that the party is neither dead nor sleeping,—is as certain as that we write these lines. The Radical party in North Carolina, though they made, for strategic purposes, a feint of demoralization by not putting a State ticket in the field in the late campaign, is as compactly organized to-day as it ever was. There is the same necessity for solid and earnest organization, to-day, among all true Democrats, as when Kirk and his cut-throats were riding rough-shod over the liberties of the people; and, great as—for we have not only to fight the well-drilled forces of the enemy, but a mischievous element in our midst which would ruin or ruin.

We are glad that the correspondent of the Tribune has let the cat out of the bag. We announce it on our conviction that there will be regular Radical nominees for Congress in every District, where the prospect or possibility of Democratic defection affords them the slightest ground to hope for success. Their reliance is to make a breach in our ranks and slip in through the opening. The programme may not be disclosed until a late day, but it will be sprung before the end. They may appear to be sleeping, but it is the cunning slumber of the animal that closes only one eye.

Not less satisfied are we that the Radical correspondent of the Tribune, in stating his hopes, has sounded the right note of warning for us. We will do well to stamp on our memories and carry about with us everywhere the Tribune's confident and boastful declaration: "Four (or even two) Republican members of the House of Representatives from North Carolina might not only change the political complexion of the popular branch of Congress, but might even prevent the choice of a Democratic President in 1880, if the election should be thrown into the House."

The man who puts himself up in opposition to the expressed choice of the Democratic party, in view of such a danger ahead, and lends himself to break up and destroy its organization, is a traitor to the party and to the consequent best interests of the country. There may sometimes be excuse for breaking party bonds with respect to minor offices, though, with our views of fealty to principle, we cannot admit it; but when issues are at stake affecting the most vital interests of the party and of the Republic, and the very center of the government itself, the man who deserts the banners of his professed faith is recreant and untrue.

The Hon. A. M. Scales.

We announce, with sincere gratification, the re-nomination for Congress of this distinguished gentleman by the Democratic Convention of the Fifth District, which assembled in Greensboro on yesterday. General Scales has made his mark in the House of Representatives, and his constituents have acted wisely in again claiming his services. Chairman of an important committee, an able debater and an industrious, efficient and conscientious worker, he has attained a high position in the National councils. The skill, especially, and the success, (so far as the House of Representatives was concerned,) with which he engineered the bill for the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department, last winter, won for him decided reputation. It is votes on all questions affecting the monetary policy of the government have been in full accord with the demands of the people, and leave no room for cavil, even at the hands of Colonel Winston, who has set himself up, we are sorry to say, (for his own sake,) as an "independent" champion of financial reform.

Alfred Moore Scales was born in Rockingham county, November 26, 1827; is not a graduate but received a classical education at the Caldwell Institute in Greensboro, and at the University of North Carolina; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and still prosecutes his profession; was a member of the Legislature of North Carolina in 1852-'53, and in 1856-'57; was a member of the House of Representatives in the 35th Congress of the United States; volunteered at the beginning of the late war as a private in the Confederate army, and was afterwards promoted and served as Captain, Colonel and Brigadier-General; was elected to the 44th Congress, and was re-elected to the 45th Congress, receiving 13,246 votes against 11,001 votes for James E. Boyd, Radical. His District consists of the counties of Alamance, Caswell, Davidson, Guilford, Person, Randolph, Rockingham and Stokes.

Our District Convention.

Let it be borne in mind that the Convention for this District, to nominate a candidate for Congress, assembled in Raleigh on next Thursday, the 22d, inst. In response to a request made by H. A. London, Jr., Esq., Chairman of the District Executive Committee, the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad and the Raleigh and Augusta Air Line will issue tickets to the delegates at three cents a mile, and it is presumed that the same courtesy will be extended by the North Carolina Railroad.

Let us have a rousing Convention and nominate the rousingest man.

The Devil, it is said, can quote Scripture to suit his purpose. And so even Ben. Butler can sometimes say a good true thing, as is proven by the following extract from a recent speech of his in Maine:

"I honor a man who labors. I care not what his employment is. I have a very high regard and respect for him; but for a man who, because he had a father who left him a fortune, goes about utterly worthless to society and lives only for his selfish lust, and who is of no good to himself, his fellow man, his country or his God, and for the miserable fellow who, when he can get from house to house and becomes a burden upon the community; for both of these men I have the utmost horror and contempt."

Hon. Jesse J. Yeates.

The Washington Post pays the following compliment to this gentleman: "We are glad to see that honest Jesse J. Yeates has been re-nominated in the First North Carolina District. There are few more useful, hard-working or consistent members than Mr. Yeates, and few, too, who on the proper occasion can rise to a higher pitch of eloquence."

This is both just and true. Maj. Yeates does not speak often in the House of Representatives, but when he does, he commands attention and speaks well and forcibly. His aptitude as a pungent and popular speaker induced the Ohio representatives to ask his aid in the campaign in that State, last Fall, and he rendered gallant and effective service. We predict for him now a brilliant canvass and a triumphant re-election.

VEGETINE.

For Dropsy.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., Oct. 19, 1877.

Dr. H. K. Stevens,

It is a pleasure to give my testimony for your valuable medicine. I was sick for a long time with Dropsy, under the doctor's care. He said I had Water between the heart and liver. I received no benefit until I commenced taking the Vegetine in Oct. 1. I was growing worse. I tried many remedies; they did not help me. Vegetine is the medicine I needed. I began to feel better after taking a few bottles. I have taken thirty bottles in all. I am perfectly well. I never felt better. No one can feel more thankful than I do.

I am, dear Sir, gratefully yours,

A. D. WILKINSON.

Vegetine—When the blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from change of weather or of climate, want of exercise, irregular diet, or from other causes, the Vegetine will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, give new strength, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

Vegetine.

FOR KIDNEY COMPLAINT AND NEURALGIC DEBILITY.

LESLAND, ME., Dec. 25, 1877.

MR. STEVENS:

Dear Sir,—I had, for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine, a very bad case of Dropsy, which was caused by disease of the kidneys. I was very nervous, and could not sleep. I had a great deal of pain in my back, and my head was very bad. I tried many remedies, but they did not help me. I commenced taking the Vegetine in Oct. 1. I was growing worse. I tried many remedies; they did not help me. Vegetine is the medicine I needed. I began to feel better after taking a few bottles. I have taken thirty bottles in all. I am perfectly well. I never felt better. No one can feel more thankful than I do.

I am, dear Sir, gratefully yours,

A. D. WILKINSON.

Vegetine

FOR SICK HEADACHE.

EVANVILLE, Ind., Jan. 4, 1878.

MR. STEVENS:

I have used your Vegetine for sick headache, and have been greatly benefited thereby. I have every reason to believe it to be a good medicine.

Yours very respectfully,

MRS. J. A. CONNER.

Headache—There are various causes for headache, as derangement of the circulating system, etc. Vegetine can be said to be a sure remedy for the most kinds of headache, as it acts directly upon the various causes of this complaint, and restores the system to its normal condition. It is a good medicine for the following complaints: Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Nephritis, etc. Try the Vegetine. You will never regret it.

VEGETINE

Doctor's Report.

DR. CHAS. M. DUDENHAUSEN, Apothecary, Evansville, Ind.

I have written: I have seen many of your customers who take Vegetine. They all speak well of it. I know it is a good medicine for the complaints for which it is recommended.

Vegetine is a great panacea for our aged patients and children. It gives them strength, gives to their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep.

VEGETINE

DOCTOR'S REPORT.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

I have been selling your valuable Vegetine for three years, and we find that it gives perfect satisfaction. We believe it to be the best medicine for our time. Very respectfully,
